Remembrance of Things Past

"Before you even get your coffee, there's something you have to see," said Beverly and Frances. "Just put your briefcase down, get the camera, and come with us."

It was a busy Friday morning in the Wesleyan PR office, but I complied.

I was one of the first to see what the paint crew had uncovered: a glimpse of Wesleyan's past, covered up long enough that the present generation of faculty, staff, and students didn't know it existed.

The mural occupied one entire wall of the small, half-painted room. One corner of it had suffered water damage at some point, but the painting had survived three decades under its wallpaper mask remarkably well. The Christian symbolism was evident in the mural's rich colors and Byzantine iconography. But how easily the treasure had slipped into obscurity — how easily it had been lost!

You can read all about the mural and its creator on page 32 — and you're welcome to come take a look at it next time you're on campus.

The re-emergence of the mural is but one of many recent reminders of Wesleyan's heritage. Pat Hardeman's "Tales from the Vault" series once again drew record convocation crowds this fall. The Golden Hearts of '99 have gathered materials for a time capsule for the new Senior Apartments. And Mark Auslander's first-year seminar class took on the task of researching "memory points" in the campus environment and in the minds of alumnae.

As 1998 draws to a close, we wax nostalgic again at the passing of another year. It's been a good one for Wesleyan. We hope you'll enjoy reading about it — even while we look to the future and create the memories of the next generation.

Checking your gift list and still looking for a perfect gift for a special Wesleyan friend?

The Wesleyan Annual Fund Office invites you to celebrate the season by choosing a Wesleyan Holiday Tribute for that special friend, roommate, or faculty member. You may designate your gift to Wesleyan in honor of someone special on the Annual Fund response envelope and a beautiful holiday tribute card will be sent announcing that a gift has been made in her or his honor by you. The amount of the gift is, of course, never disclosed.

Holiday tribute cards may be sent for gifts received from November 28 through December 31. Be sure to include the recipient's name and address on the response envelope.

The fifty-foot-tall gingko tree (Gingko biloba) outside the Candler Alumnae Center is one of the oldest trees on campus, one of several gingkos that were planted in the early years at Rivoli. Each autumn its leaves turn a brilliant yellow — dear to the Golden Hearts! — and hold their glory for a few short days before the leaves rain down to form a short-lived carpet of gold. Pictured here is Golden Heart senior (class of 1999) Dottie Whittington.

STATE OF THE College 1997-98

NORA KIZER BELL, PH.D., PRESIDENT

December, 1998

THE PAST YEAR HAS BEEN A BUSY ONE for all of us here at Wesleyan. Many of you who have been here recently have seen the incredible changes that have taken place in the physical appearance of the campus. And, of course, there are even more changes under way as I write. Change is sometimes difficult, but I hope you will find that we have preserved the best of Wesleyan's past even as we reach toward the future. The college is truly in a growth mode, and we are in the middle of one of our most successful years ever!

If you haven't been to campus in the last eighteen months, let me give you a brief summary of all that we have done.

STUDENT ENROLLMENT

Our enrollments this year grew by twenty-five percent over last year's final enrollment, and, as you may have read, that increase was spurred by the college's largest entering class in the past twenty-two years. We were all pleased by the excitement and enthusiasm of the new first-year students and the returning students — and by their academic and intellectual eagerness. What a wonderful new group of future alumnae!

This year Wesleyan enrolled 70% of the students who participated in our scholarship competition. This was a dramatic increase over last year and has already made quite a difference in the academic environment overall. Students studying foreign languages have formed language groups that speak only in the language they are studying. Science students are engaged in research with their faculty mentors as early as their second semester. Wesleyan debaters are winning competitions all over the country. The hum of activity, intellectual and social, is palpable everywhere on campus.

Wesleyan also began an Evening Program this fall. Although he only had about three months to pull it all together, Steve Farr, director of evening and off-campus programs, enrolled 75 new women students in that Evening Program. Because Wesleyan is the only women's college in Central Georgia, we felt that there was a ready market for a program that would allow women to complete the baccalaureate degree at night. We also felt that we have an obligation to women in the workforce who would like to complete their degrees, but who don't want to do so in a larger, coeducational environment. It appears that we were right. We are currently registering for Spring semester and have already exceeded fall enrollments for the upcoming semester. These students are thrilled to be at Wesleyan — some of them have already asked how we will determine their class year when they become alumnae. They feel a strong connection to one another and, though they will likely graduate at different times, hoped that we would consider their entering date as their "class year."

We were not surprised to learn that the Wesleyan bond is equally strong for traditional and non-traditional students alike.

Below: Wesleyan administrators plan for the college's future, with consultants from the Sasaki architectural firm of Boston. The college's twenty-year master plan will accommodate for growth in the student population through new and renovated residence halls; a revamped student life center; new athletic facilities; more classroom, office, and meeting space; and improved pedestrian and vehicle access.

ACADEMIC PROGRAM

Of course, the dean and the faculty continue to stay ahead of other institutions in curriculum development and the teaching/learning environment. As I was arriving last fall, the new student-centered curriculum with its innovative General Education component was being implemented. It has been in place for a full year, and it is proving to be as exciting and rigorous as the faculty expected it to be. In fact, when I attended AAC&U last year, I was intrigued by the fact that most of the agenda for that annual meeting was centered on recommending the kinds of curricular innovations that Wesleyan had just implemented.

We have done such a good job with this new curriculum that the dean and a faculty group will present two in-depth workshops on our experience at AAC&U's annual meeting this winter. For those of you who get lost in acronyms, AAC&U stands for the American Association of Colleges & Universities, the national organization whose primary focus is liberal arts institutions.

Wesleyan is also known, as you will remember, for the work we have done in academic computing. Last year, Wake Forest held a conference on ubiquitous computing, at which we were asked to present. As a result of the dean's and faculty's presentation on the agenda of that meeting, we were invited to present our experience at an AGB (American Association of Governing Boards) meeting last spring, and, we have been invited to be lead presenters again this year at the Wake Forest conference.

Wesleyan's First-Year Seminar program is well known and lauded by those who have built their professional careers around developing first-year experiences. Professor John Gardner of the University of South Carolina, who is the national expert on first-year programs, has often commented on how well Wesleyan has structured its entire first-year experience. While other institutions have first-year seminars, few have made those seminars completely academic; fewer still have accomplished the interdisciplinary academic content as successfully as Wesleyan has. And I don't know of any other institution that takes the entire first-year class off on a weekend retreat together with their faculty advisors at the beginning of the school year! (For more on the First-Year Seminars, see Sara Pilger's story in this issue, pages 6-9.) That has made an incredible difference in our students' entire academic experience here at Wesleyan, and the dean and the faculty continue to strengthen and improve the FYS program.

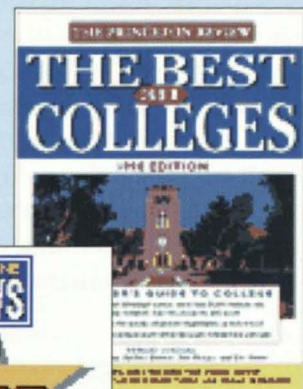

Now they have "bookended" our students' four years at Wesleyan by implementing a senior-year experience as well. The dean and faculty piloted our Senior Integrative Experience program this fall, and it was incredibly successful. Professor Gardner has invited Wesleyan to present at his national conference on our new program. Suffice it to say — we are still ahead of the curve!

We added several new faculty positions this fall — some in foreign language, computer science and math, art, and education. The dean has been successful in hiring every one of her first choices. That in itself speaks volumes about the quality of our academic program.

Wesleyan, as you know, is ranked among the top national liberal arts institutions in the country. We aspire to rise in those rankings to stand among the top 100. If academic quality counts as it should, we should be there by 2002.

INTERNATIONAL STUDY

By spring, Wesleyan will implement several new study-abroad opportunities — including exchange opportunities with Syook Myung Women's University in Seoul,

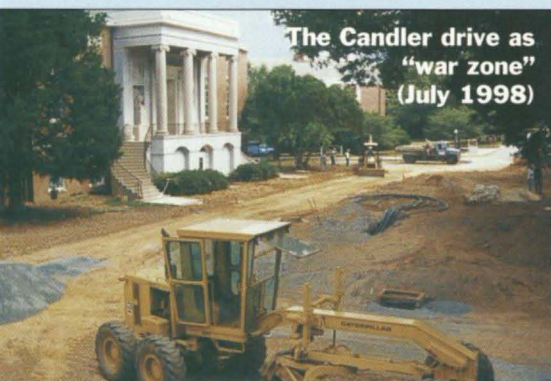

Wesleyan has once again been named one of "America's Best Colleges" by U.S. News & World Report. Wesleyan, which is ranked as a national liberal arts college, was cited as one of the top ten most diverse colleges in the country — the only college in the Southeast to make the list.

The Princeton Review's Best 311 Colleges notes Wesleyan's strong commitment to academics, its small class sizes, its emphasis on class discussion, and its excellent town-gown relations.

Korea; International Christian University in Japan; Sofia University in Bulgaria; Westminster College of Oxford University in Great Britain; and a multitude of other international exchange opportunities made available through our new memberships in National Student Exchange and International Student Exchange.

Our students are extremely excited about the new possibilities for international study that these agreements will provide. Steve Farr, director of evening and off-campus programs, and Mark Auslander, professor of anthropology, are heading up the administrative and advising duties for the International Study Programs. Barbara Rowan will continue to do on-campus advising and programming for international students who come to Wesleyan.

The Candler drive as
"war zone"
(July 1998)

THE CAMPUS

When the students arrived on campus this fall, the new bookstore on the main floor of the Olive Swann Porter

Building was finished. It is magnificent. However, considerable construction was in progress and the front campus looked, to be honest, a little like a war zone. As we reconfigured traffic and parking patterns through campus, we also had to fill in all the tunnels under front campus in order to ensure better drainage. (This became necessary after a concrete truck "sank" into a tunnel up to its axles while pouring our new sidewalks.) At the same time, we replaced all the electrical wiring in most of the campus buildings and ran 45 miles of computer cabling (Ethernet) to all the buildings. This resulted in the addition of more than 1,200 new data drops, making it possible for us to support both Macs and PCs in our campus-computing environment. Of course, I am sure that parents and student wondered if the campus would ever look the same -- but everyone was cheerful and optimistic about our "progress." And their optimism was quickly rewarded.

Within a month, Bob King, director of physical plant, had things all back together, grass planted and watered, and new pavement poured. Things have grown progressively more beautiful every day since then.

By the end of December the new senior apartments will be complete. For those of you who haven't seen them, it is worth a trip to campus. We preserved the architectural context of the campus and even found the same brick as was used in the other buildings on campus. The senior apartments look as if they are an extension of the rest of the campus. Each apartment building has a cupola, white Chippendale-style railings over the entrances, and a similar keystone over the windows. As everyone in Macon keeps saying, these buildings are incredibly handsome. And they went up so quickly! Students will move in the first week of January and are very excited that their new residences will have four private bedrooms (each with its own private bath) around a central living/dining room area, a kitchen with dishwasher, disposal, icemaker, washer/dryer. And we have furnished the apartments — modestly, but appropriately. Again, credit goes to Bob King who has been masterful in his work with the architects and construction firm.

In addition, the second phase of the Mathews Athletic Facility is coming up out of the ground. It promises to be another stunning building! Many of you already are aware that it is sited down near the new tennis courts and athletic fields — across the lake behind Jones. That structure, too, will use the old campus brick and will preserve the architectural context of the campus. The building will contain team rooms, locker rooms, and training rooms, as well as a state-of-the-art fitness room and a large aerobics room. The Mathews Building will have Mount Vernon-style porches on front and back — one overlooking the tennis courts and the other overlooking the equestrian ring. We are grateful to college trustee George Mathews for funding both phases of this athletic complex. It will be a wonderful complement to and impetus for all that we have planned for athletics in the future.

— and peaceful

And — we are building a new stable for the equestrian program. The stables behind Bradley House were not large enough and not floored properly for equestrian use. More and more students are choosing Wesleyan because they want to compete in equestrian events. Several of our students even bring their own horses. The new stable is designed so that we can add two additional wings in the future with twenty-four additional stalls. Our riders are thrilled about the new stable. They are extremely competitive nationally — you may recall that Jessica Salter '98 won her event at the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association national finals in May, 1998.

The flags on front campus and on all the lamp poles are permanently in place. The purple pansies are the most gorgeous I have ever seen. People in Macon stop all of us on the street to comment on the beauty of the campus and the construction they see under way.

CONTRIBUTIONS AND SUPPORT FOR WESLEYAN COLLEGE

As you'll see from the Honor Roll of Donors on pages 12-31 of this issue, Wesleyan has indeed been fortunate this year in the level and amount of donor support we have received. I think that many foundations and individuals recognize that we are an institution on the move! Just consider the following list of gifts in the past several months:

- Atlanta foundations have pledged $3,000,000 for campus renovations and new construction.
- Alumnae giving reached a new level of participation during the 1998 fiscal year, with 32.5% of all alumnae contributing. (Alumnae are defined as anyone with 30 or more hours of study completed at Wesleyan.)
- Eleven new endowed scholarship funds and one endowed teaching award were created.
- Membership in the Society for the Twenty-First Century membership has increased to more than 270 members.
- And the 1999 fiscal year is off to a grand start, including a $1,000,000 gift to endow an academic chair in social science, made by 100-year-old alumna Clara Carter Acree, class of 1919!

There is much, much more that I could tell you about all the new things that have been implemented in the past year. Perhaps the most important thing to say again is that Wesleyan is the same — even though Wesleyan is changing. We are working hard to help create a future that enhances every Wesleyan memory and tradition.

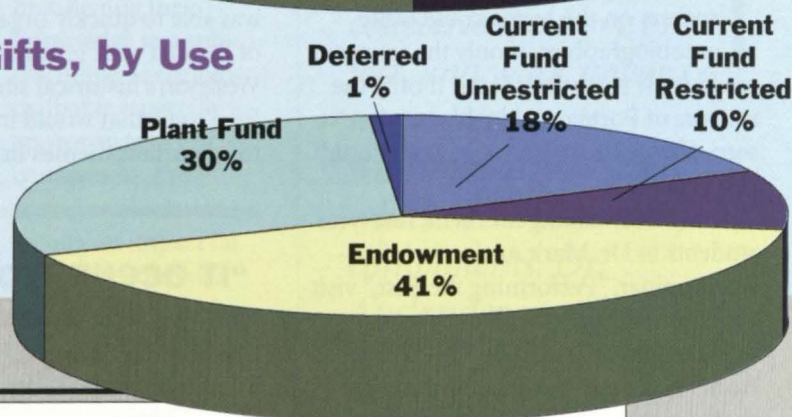

I continue to feel great satisfaction and awe at what Wesleyan offers our students. And I am still greatly honored to be able to lead this fine institution into the next millennium.

* Excluding alumnae who are trustees

by Sara King Pilger '85

Memories are made of this

"Though we have trod these paths in the these halls in different times and in different years and under different circumstances, though our experiences and our memories may be somewhat different, they are very much the same, the ideas instilled in us within these walls bind us together."

from the presentation "This is Where It All Began," presented at the dedication of the Candler Alumnae Center, 1971.

If only walls could talk. If only the rockers on the loggia could write autobiographies. If only the fountain could spew forth anecdotes. If only the mirrors of Porter could tell what they've seen. If only the parlor of Persons could pen exposés.

To do the talking for them, first-year students in Dr. Mark Auslander's first-year seminar, "Performing the Past," visited these Wesleyan sites and others, extracted their "memories" and histories from books and alumnae, and studied them for what they mean to all of us. And now these sites are ready to speak.

What these significant sites want to communicate to us is that they are important to Wesleyan because they position it with esteem among its peers as an historical treasure, and are important to individuals as home for many memories.

Dr. Auslander, a cultural anthropologist with research interests in ritual performance, current meanings of ancient sites, and historical consciousness, is new to the Wesleyan faculty this fall, yet he was able to quickly organize one section of the first-year seminar around Wesleyan's historical sites. "I was looking for a topic that would introduce students to important themes in social sciences

"IT OCCURRED TO ME that the Wesleyan campus would make a wonderful living laboratory for this course" — Dr. Mark Auslander and humanities. Diverse communities in the world are now fascinated in retelling and resurrecting aspects of their past. Because there are active rituals and traditions through which the past is officially and informally accessed every day by students, faculty and staff, it occurred to me that the Wesleyan campus would make a wonderful living laboratory for this course."

Thus "Performing the Past" was born. This course is one of thirteen seminars available to Wesleyan's first-year students. Among other related assignments, Auslander's twelve students chose sites or important elements in Wesleyan's history to evaluate.

The Wesleyan history portion of the seminar was grounded in the work of a sociologist of the Durkheimian tradition, Maurice Halbwachs, who was born in Reims in 1877 and who perished at Buchenwald during World War II. In his book, On Collective Memory, he theorized that each person's memory is part of a greater collective memory in a society, a society that controls individual memory through the use of "prompts" — objects, sites, sounds, smells, or other elements that recall a memory and localize it.

In the students' research, the prompts became locations or traditions around the campus, referred to as "memory points," that triggered memory recall for individuals, and when combined with those of other individuals, for the Wesleyan society as a whole. Each student chose a memory point, researched its factual history, interviewed members of the Wesleyan community, and related what she learned to Halbwachs' theory.

Sara King Pilger '85 manages a family of five and a small home-based public relations business, Sara K. Pilger Communications Services. She recommends that the first-year students leave Banks Dormitory immediately, because the collective memory of that location for the Pirate class of '85 is anything but pleasant! (Banks being the site of the haunted house during Rat Week '81)

In the course of researching their memory points, students were able to witness the processes of prompting and localizing. When interviewing alumnae and teachers for her memory point, the Mount Vernon Porch, April Prince '02 found common ground. "We all shared memories of porches, and I knew that, but the entire idea of the collective memory that surfaced is amazing. It was so exciting to witness Halbwachs' theory and actually understand and argue with his hypothesis."

"MEMORY POINTS" TEA in the Burden Parlor introduced new students to alumnae memories. Gail Bacon Ford '79 (center) relates tales of the Wesleyan of generations past.

April, a first-year student from the Florida panhandle who plans a major in music, chose the topic of porches because they were such a huge part of her life growing up. "When I first came to Wesleyan this year, I was incredibly homesick, and the porch was a way for me to be comforted. I sat outside on the porch, and I would begin to feel better. Porches were a path for me to link myself with my family and life before with my present situation."

Sabrina Ebright '02 was struck by the common experiences Wesleyannes share as she began her research on first-year dorms. "I realized that many, many other young women had lived in these rooms and looked in these same mirrors (yes, the mirrors and doors are original 1928 stock), and studied the same subjects and talked and lived and loved in these very same dorm rooms. What were these girls like? Where were they from? What did they experience here at Wesleyan?"

Sabrina's family lives in Alpharetta, Georgia, and she is living on the third floor of Banks Hall while Persons is under renovation this fall. Her hallway is a memory point for her grandmother, Anne Maddox Ebright '37, who also lived on third floor Banks. It is also becoming a memory point for Sabrina, as she works to make it her home, with purple lights framing the door and pictures of home papering the walls.

While developing interview, research, and computer skills and broadening their knowledge in a sub-discipline of sociology that is especially appropriate to our community, these young students are having an impact far outside themselves, and far beyond the campus. These students may be more acutely aware than any other new Wesleyannes that they are themselves influencing the college's collective memory by participating in this seminar.

Those who attended the annual Herstory Week presentation, those who visit the class' web site, and even those who read these words are affected by the memory prompts selected by the students. Which of us can read samples of their work without drawing up long-forgotten anecdotes of events by the lake, or experiences at pep rallies by the fountain, or dances in Oval Hall, or the slow beat of a drum, or fall afternoons during our freshman year reading those first letters from high school friends on the loggia?

In order to begin archiving memory

a blend of the old and the new

Aside from the papers presented, the students in this first-year seminar were taught how to navigate the World Wide Web and create their own homepages for their work (try www.wesleyan-college.edu/academics/studentprojects/memoryhome.htm). The goal for the website is to build on it as part of a collective memory project, and work toward a larger Wesleyan Anthropology website which will have many components. Dr. Auslander is assigning website construction to students in other anthropology classes as well. The African Civilizations students are starting a website on African art at the Tubman Museum, and next semester the students in Anthropology of Nature will develop a website on the campus woods and the Ocmulgee Indian Mounds.

Pulitzer winner Smiley to visit Wesleyan

The Wesleyan community is "all smiles" about the 1999 Carnes Lecture. Novelist Jane Smiley, whose A Thousand Acres won the 1992 Pulitzer Prize for fiction, will speak to the Wesleyan community at 11:15 a.m., Thursday, January 28, in Porter Auditorium. The event is free and open to the public.

Smiley's most recent novel, The All-true Travels and Adventures of Lidie Newton (Knopf, 1998), deals with issues of slavery and women's experience in the American Midwest and South. It's a book that reviewer Ellen Kanner terms "a call for freedom and tolerance dressed as a page-turner, a ripping good read."

Nothing would have made the booklover Katharine Payne Carnes happier. Carnes, a Wesleyan graduate of the class of 1913, served as the college's librarian from 1919 to 1959 — a forty-year career that covered both the old and new Wesleyan campuses and involved her in the lives and studies of thousands of Wesleyan students. Alumnae still remember with affection her "Dear Girls" letters, her Christmas parties, and her keen sense of humor. A native of Macon, Carnes received her library degree from the Library School of the Carnegie Library of Atlanta in 1914 and her master's degree in library science from the University of Michigan in 1928. Before returning to her alma mater as librarian, she gained professional experience in the Children's Department of the New York Public Library, at the library of Winthrop College, and the Morristown, New Jersey, library. She died in 1981.

Porter Auditorium
Wesleyan campus

The Alumnae Association established the Katharine Payne Carnes Lecture Series in 1983; the fund was later supplemented by Carnes' sister, the late Estelle Carnes. Over the past fifteen years it has brought to the Wesleyan campus such notable women as authors Ursula K. LeGuin and Virginia Hamilton, flutist Eugenia Zuckerman, journalist Deborah Norville, and NASA astronaut Bonnie Dunbar.

Jane Smiley will talk to the Wesleyan and Macon community about the reader-writer relationship and its importance to her work. Herself a graduate of a women's college (Vassar, 1971), Smiley is no stranger to the academic culture. She holds the M.A., M.F.A., and Ph.D. from the University of Iowa. (Smiley's readers may recall that the topic of her hilarious 1995 satire, Moo, was a "large midwestern university famous for its agricultural college.")

Mark your calendars now for this important event. And start reading now!

—Barbara Brannon

Correction

In the Summer 1998 Wesleyan College News, an error that we discovered in proofreading nevertheless made its way into print: It was Shannon McGinley '99 who spoke at the Governor's Institute for the state of Maine; Erica Collingsworth '99 spent her summer working with Common Cause in Washington, D.C. Our apologies to all.

Wesleyan College Theatre

Dramatic Doings

When someone on campus tells you things are lively in the Wesleyan College Theatre these days, they mean it in more than one sense.

Theatre director and assistant professor Frazer Lively, who holds the Ph.D. in theater and performance studies from the University of Pittsburgh and a certificate in French from the Université de Paris-Sorbonne, has brought prodigious energy and creativity to the Wesleyan theatre program.

Last year's season debuted with Aurand Harris's Monkey Magic, a delightful Chinese story theatre piece performed in honor of the Soong sisters. Other shows of 1997-98 were George Furth's comedy The Supporting Cast, Arthur Kopit's Chamber Music, and Rita Nachtmann's Mama Drama (for which the playwright also taught an intensive workshop for the first Midstate Contemporary American Playwright's Festival, in conjunction with Mercer University, Macon State College, and Theatre Macon).

Fall semester 1998 has already been a busy time, with productions of Waiting for the Parade and Les Belles Sœurs. Spring 1999 will bring several special treats: among them a play about African-American women, to be produced at the Douglass Theatre; a return of Rita Nachtmann for a public lecture on "Writing race and gender in a multi-cultural world" on January 14; and a lecture and book signing by Lively on March 9. Lively's Madame la Mort and Other Plays (Johns Hopkins, 1998) deals with the startlingly original plays of Rachilde, a woman who posed as a man.

For a full schedule of Spring cultural events, see back cover. Watch your Inside Wesleyan for further details. W

Wesleyan's first M.A.'s receive degrees

In August, three degree candidates in Wesleyan's new master of arts program for teachers completed their requirements, making them the first Master of Arts graduates in the college's history.

Midstate residents (rightward from center) Tamara Nelson, Beth Hitt '97, and Harriet Hopkins entered the program during its first year, 1996. The program, designed for certified teachers in middle school math and science, is designed to be completed in three summers, but students may take additional courses during the regular school term.

Hitt was the first student to defend a graduate thesis at Wesleyan. She presented her research, "The Relationship Between the Co-op Model of Cooperative Learning and Student Attitude Toward Mathematics," on June 29. Her findings suggested that cooperative learning increases girls' classroom performance, whereas the performance of boys is negatively affected.

"You have to find the right combination of teaching strategies to make sure that every student learns, however," says Hitt. Graduates Nelson and Hopkins, who teach third and seventh grades, respectively, would agree.

As for their career qualifications upon graduation, Hitt commented about her peers, "These people can do anything they want!"

In 1998, Wesleyan will add an early childhood concentration to its master's program.

Notes on Gifts and Giving to Wesleyan College

HORSE SENSE (AND DOLLARS):

Often a gift-in-kind can make sound financial sense for both the donor and the college. That was the case when Janet Larson, M.D., of Aiken, South Carolina, recently needed a good home for the family's quarter horse, Spy. Larson's daughter Cathryn Lyons is shown at left, holding Spy — who did prove a good fit for Wesleyan's equestrian program. "Students love him," says director of riding Jon Conyers. "They're signing up for turns to ride him."

PK PHILANTHROPY: The Purple Knights Class of 1998, led by Melissa Ryan and Sarah Weeks (Callender), presented Wesleyan's largest class gift ever — $1,998 in gifts and pledges.

IT JUST KEEPS GROWING...AND GROWING...

Annual Fund Chair Sally Moffett KcKenna '75 (above) helped plant the "Growing Together" oak tree by Foster Lake, during Alumnae Weekend 1998. The tree recognizes all alumnae who increased their gifts by 10% for 1997-98.

Honor Roll of Donors

Wesleyan College would like to thank each individual and organization who so generously contributed to its important work during the 1997-98 year.

The President's Council

The President's Council is made up of alumnae and friends who, as partners in Wesleyan's future, contributed $10,000 or more to the college during the last fiscal year.

1836 Club

The 1836 Club, named in honor of the year Wesleyan was founded, is

1920s

Lillian Crawford McKenzie '24 has been cataloging her substantial listings in Who's Who directories over the years. She is most proud of Who's Who of American Women ('65), Foremost Women of the 20th Century ('88), World Who's Who of Women ('88), and International Who's Who of Women ('92). Lillian lives in Orange Park, Florida.

From Thomaston, Georgia, Mary Weaver Arnold '27 writes that she is turning ninety-three in January, and regrets being unable to attend last year's reunion, though she made the fifty- and sixty-year reunions. She writes, "due to circumstances beyond my control, it was necessary for me to graduate elsewhere, but the two and one-half years spent with wonderful friends and teachers have never been forgotten."

Aileen West Willingham '28 was featured in the Macon Telegraph in August in an article on long-time residents of the city. She moved to Macon in 1926 to attend Wesleyan, and reminisced about living on College Street and taking long drives in the country — to Vineville Avenue!

"After enjoying Hollywood, Florida, for thirty-six years, I have moved to Birmingham, Alabama, to be near my family," writes Elizabeth Good Schilling '33. She has an apartment in a retirement complex there.

Ann Munck '38 of Macon isn't letting retirement slow her down. Traveling and working with history professor Marcile Taylor, she is working on a research project to identify murals that hang in old public buildings, and comparing them to works in Georgia buildings. The two researchers were spotted in July in Des Plaines, Illinois, in the lobby of the Journal and Topics Newspapers studying two murals there.

Mary Lovett Sharpe Robinson '39 took an extended trip with extended family this summer. The Sylvania, Georgia, resident took her six children and their spouses on a tour of Italy. They had their own bus and guide, and even enjoyed an audience with the Pope ("It was as near heaven as I'll ever get!"). Mary Lovett especially enjoyed seeing her family together. Dot Wink Bolding '38 from Daytona Beach, Florida, also joined the group.

1940s

An eightieth birthday party was a wonderful reason to celebrate for Merritt Bell Hertwig '41 of Macon. Her two daughters, Willa Hertwig and Mary Johnson, planned the special occasion, and several Wesleyannes were in attendance, including Gena Sewell Davidson '64 of Lynchburg, Virginia.

Active on the board of the Valdosta and Lowndes County Habitat for Humanity and chairman of the Nurture Committee for the "Sweet Sixteen" homes, Ruth Reid Powell '42 shows no signs of slowing down.

Eva Spence Jeronimus '45 of Bradenton, Florida, is delighted to have been able to see all of her children this year.

A fiftieth wedding anniversary was the highlight of September for Larry and Emily Bradford Batts '46 of Charlotte, North Carolina. She also traveled to Normandy and Paris, France, with her daughter and son-in-law over the summer.

The Atlanta Athletic Club benefited from the creativity and generosity of two Wesleyannes this fall. Artist Charlotte Walters Erickson '46 gave her portrait of U. S. Open champ Jerry Pate to her lifelong Wesleyan friend, Joyce Gallagher Pate '46, Jerry's mother. Joyce in turn generously donated the portrait to the Athletic Club, where Jerry earned the 1976 win. "The Shot Heard 'Round the World" now hangs proudly in the club's Golf Wing, with the famous scorecard and other Jerry Pate memorabilia.

Peggy Ann "P. A." Pangborn Roos '47 lives in Pungoteague, Virginia, and enjoys her work as Regent of the Eastern Shore of the Virginia Chapter of the D.A.R., many members of which are graduates of Randolph-Macon Woman's College. P.A. writes that it would be fun to have President Bell visit, knowing she would feel at home among so many of her fellow alumnae.

Elizabeth Elyea Ward '48 of Atlanta was awarded a life membership in the Medical Auxiliary of Atlanta Alliance, an organization that supports the Medical Association of Atlanta through public health education. Other Wesleyannes who have received this award have included Irene Sewell Hobby '22, Christine Rountree Anderson '41, and Joyce Miller Morgan '49.

A trip to Switzerland with the family was part of the fiftieth wedding anniversary celebrations of Tom and Virginia Cole Barrow '49, who reside in Atlanta.

Laconia, New Hampshire, is the new home for Betty Holt Lawton '49. She moved just over a year ago. Betty's networked with the rest of the world now, and can be reached at bfaye@worldpath.net.

1950s

Macon's Susan Thigpen McDuffie '53, a fine musician herself, especially enjoyed the music at daughter Margery's wedding this summer. Margery is a professor of music at the University of Alabama, and she asked brother Robert, a renowned concert violinist, and several of his friends to provide music for the ceremony. Several of Margery's colleagues played as well. Their selections were the topic of an Emily Chase Cook '70 column in the Macon Telegraph in August.

Coastal Carolina University has recently voted Carolyn Gleaton Cox '55 of Conway, South Carolina, professor emeritus of music, on the occasion of her retirement as associate professor and chair of the Department of Music.

From Gainesville, Florida, Elizabeth Truitt Furlow '55 reports that she joined husband Leonard for another work trip to Honduras with Interplast in October. It was Interplast's thirtieth anniversary trip to do surgery in the Central American country. Son Trey married in December.

The Alumnae Office had a welcome surprise this October when Woody and Lucy Neely Adams '56 of Cookeville, Tennessee, dropped by to say hello. The couple met while Lucy was a student at Wesleyan, and they were re-visiting all of their old haunts. Lucy also brought a copy of her book, Song Stories, a collection of stories recounting the history behind several of the world's most beloved hymns, for the Alumnae Office archives.

Gail Gilkerson Neumann '57 of Miami reports that she is celebrating forty-two years of marriage and has recently taken a trip to the Greek Islands, Israel and Turkey. She was also named Volunteer of the Year by the Human Services Coalition of Miami-Dade County. Gail also informed the college of the death of Catherine (Tatty) Shafer Malnati '57 of Sarasota, Florida, this past summer (see Deaths).

Mary Louise "Ludy" Banks Peavy '59 of Byron, Georgia, retired at the beginning of 1998 after fifteen years in the University System as a career counselor (her second career). Her first career was as a mother and wife — but she's "ready now to start a third career."

The current work of artist Carol King Pope '59 focuses primarily on landscapes and seascapes. A former student of the late Theresa Rett English '49, she exhibits in art shows throughout the Southeast and has won numerous awards. Carol and husband Mickey have made their home in Macon since this past spring.

1960s

The University of Akron has named the theatre in Kolbe Hall in honor of Paul A. Daum '61, in appreciation for his thirty-four years of service to the University and his continuing philanthropy on behalf of the University. Paul has also established two scholarships at Wesleyan.

Maconite Jeanette Loflin Shackelford '61, chair of Wesleyan's music department and director of MidSummer Macon, a fine arts program of workshops, camps, and classes for young people and adults alike, was delighted that this year's summer program drew four hundred people. This year marked the tenth anniversary of the program.

An adaptation of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol by Atlanta resident Sandra Deer '62 is again on the December list of offerings for the Alliance Theatre in Atlanta. The program has become a holiday favorite.

Another Wesleyan wedding took place on Valentine's Day of this year. Dottie Rhoden Bailey '62 of Cobbtown, Georgia, married Jack Hicks, and many classmates were there to celebrate: Marybelle Proctor Menzel of Littleton, Colorado; Charlotte Jolly Hale of Jasper, Georgia; Rhoda Morrison Joyner of Decatur, Georgia; and LaTrelle Blackburn Oliver of Oxford, Georgia.

"Members of the First Baptist Church in Washington, Georgia, are delighted with the work of new music director Patricia Bonner Burton '62. People of all ages are responding enthusiastically to her programs. . . and are glad she has retired to my own hometown of Washington," writes Hilda Wright '65, who now resides in Norcross, Georgia.

Joyce Brandon Starr '63 of Atlanta sends her regrets for missing the reunion this year. She was tending to her mother, Frances Hall Brandon '30, following a series of strokes and just prior to her mother's death. Joyce is the daughter and granddaughter of Wesleyannes.

Fellow Wesleyanne and childhood friend Sylvia Crusoe Callan '60 of Winter Park, Florida, died in the spring after a lengthy battle with cancer, writes Gayle Pierce Casale '64 of Atlanta. Their mothers have been friends for more than fifty years.

Peggy Pierce Chandler '64 of Holland, Michigan, lost her husband this year to colon cancer after a very brief illness. She still works with her daughter in a small T-shirt and sweat-shirt business, and is looking forward to the reunion next spring. (See Deaths.)

Sally Bone Fay '65 of Panama City, Florida, is a grandmother. Daughter Cathy delivered a boy in March.

"I had the delight of traveling in Australia and New Zealand during the month of April. While in Auckland at the Hillsong Conference, during an evening service of praise and worship, God touched me and totally healed me from the asthma which I had been treating daily with medications for the past twenty-four years. Thanks be to God!" writes Peggy Shoemaker McGuire '65 of Asheville, North Carolina.

Fann Dewar Greer '66 of Norfolk, Virginia, hosted Maconites for a cocktail buffet in honor of Edward Eikner, when he performed with the Virginia Symphony during the annual Beethoven Festival at Williamsburg. The Greers are former residents of Macon. Nancy Rowland Rehberg '66 was among those attending.

Lake Lanier is home for Betty Westmoreland Shuster '66, who fills her days with volunteer work and keeping up with the flight schedules of her husband and son, who are both pilots.

"I stopped by last summer to show my husband my college. It was beautiful and as graceful as it was over thirty years ago," glowed Margaret Thompson Monahan '67, who lives in Norton, Virginia. "When I realized that the 'new' library was almost that old, and that I had never been in it, I was reminded that we all move on, I hope with as much grace as these buildings and grounds."

Susan Reynolds Gregory '70 of Marietta, Georgia, is busy with her five-year-old son, Jack.

Kathy Weeks Leaman '72 of Orange Park, Florida, is proud of daughter Elizabeth "Izzy" Leaman Hague '96, who just completed her master's degree in mass communication at the University of Wisconsin, and who married this October (see Marriages).

Susan Moses Shropshire '72 of Fort Worth, Texas, and her husband and two sons vacationed on Victoria Island in British Columbia last summer. While there they were joined for high tea at the Empress Hotel by former Wesleyan biology professor Dr. Lillian Cowie.

Janice Mays '73 of Arlington, Virginia, was the subject of a feature article in her hometown newspaper, the Waycross Journal-Herald, in May following her receipt of Wesleyan's Distinguished Alumnae Award.

With straight-A kids, Allyn Burrell Stevens '74 has a lot of pride. She lives with her family in Springfield, Missouri.

The Marietta Conference Center and Resort has named Jane Gardner Preston '76 as its community relations manager.

Nancy Williamson Witek '76 of Pisgah Forest, North Carolina, has just completed ten years with ADVO, the nation's largest direct mail advertising company. Her son is currently completing an internship with Adidas in Frankfurt, Germany. Nancy was in Macon this summer for the wedding of a child she used to babysit while a student at Wesleyan.

"That little boy many of you in Dr. Gray's seminar class helped rock to sleep has just completed his first year at Columbus State University in Columbus, Georgia," writes Gail Bacon Ford '79 of Lizella. Her other two sons are thirteen and ten.

1980s

Valerie Cowart '80 of Merrimack, New Hampshire, enjoyed the summer theology program at Christchurch, Oxford University. She is also continuing her pursuits in genealogy, and is excited about serving as class liaison this year.

Friends Production Group worked the room at the annual Mystery Dinner at the Georgia Music Hall of Fame this summer in a fund-raiser for the YWCA. Wesleyanne Sylvia Shirah Haynie '80 of Macon was the "killer."

Caroline Thomas '81 was named Singer of the Year in Münster, Germany. Her performance of Tosca was reviewed as "our new prima donna." She studied under Norman McLean while at Wesleyan, and credits her success to his teaching.

Sally Bargo Litchfield '82 of Marietta, Georgia, served as co-chair for the Episcopal Church Women Tour of Marietta's Distinguished Homes, a benefit for St. James Church.

Five children, one an infant, keep Katharine Thompson Peacock '83 busy in Venetia, Pennsylvania. The last child was born in May (see Births).

Vonda Brokopp Klein '86 recently joined the Marietta OB-GYN Affiliates, practicing obstetrics and gynecology. She had been practicing with Southern Crescent Women's Healthcare in Riverdale, Georgia.

Now the corporate director of sales and marketing, Lynn Lasseter Heard '87 has recently moved to Dunwoody, Georgia, to oversee the marketing concerns for twenty-two Marriott Hotels across the southeastern United States with McKibbin Hotel Management, the Marriott franchise owner.

Bernice Isaac '87 will serve as a co-chair of the Family Selection Committee for Habitat for Humanity, Atlanta. This is her sixth year as a volunteer on this committee.

Elizabeth Gordon Jacobs '87 of Atlanta couldn't send much in for class notes because she was expecting her second child (see Births).

Stephanie Hooks Tinkey '88 of Macon wins for "Most Creative Birthday Party." She and husband David were featured in the Macon Telegraph in June for creating a Cinderella fantasyland in their backyard to celebrate the birthdays of their girls, Grace and Faith. The backyard was transformed into a castle, built with balloons!

1990s

Ashley Garrett '90 and husband Matthew have moved to Lawrenceville, Georgia. Ashley is still with Athens Regional Medical Center.

Shantras Lakes '90 of College Park, Georgia, recently represented Wesleyan as a delegate to Spelman College's presidential inauguration. President Audrey Forbes Manley was installed as Spelman's eighth president on the thirty-first of October.

"I'm loving Mobile, and am getting my master's in educational leadership at the University of South Alabama. I recently got together with Constance Bennett Grant '90 and met President Bell in Birmingham at the coffee," writes Wendy Lee Newingham '90.

Cheryl Anderson Brown '93 and her husband, Robert E. Brown, Jr., have been named the 1998 Democrats of the Year by the Cobb County Democratic Committee. The couple was honored June 3 at the annual Jefferson Jackson Dinner in Marietta. At twenty-seven, Cheryl is the youngest person ever to be so honored. She is the administrative coordinator for audience development in the theatre department at Kennesaw State University.

She's quit her day job to take one without pay! Rachel Mathis '93 of Tallahassee is now a stay-at-home mom for son Elliott, who was born in August.

Michele Minnifield '93 of Smyrna, Georgia, married this summer in the presence of friends Trina Hammonds '91 of Lithonia, Georgia, Farhana Ramjoo Peterson '93 of Boston, and Felisa Hicks '91 of Sandersville, Georgia (see Marriages).

Still with Smyth & Helwys Publishing, Jacqui Dravis '94 of Macon is now an assistant editor and digital services specialist. She works with children's curriculum and is responsible for coordinating curriculum for electronic sales on the Web.

Wesleyannes were in abundance at the wedding of Jennifer Pozo '95 and Karl Pfefferkorn in Tullahoma, Tennessee, this summer. Wesleyannes attending the bride included Marnie Morris Tanner '96 and Elizabeth Bowling '96 of Macon, and Jennifer Edmonds '95 of Sandersville, Georgia. Catherine Atchley Atchley '95 of Sevierville, Tennessee, entertained at the reception with clogging. Other Wesleyannes attending the ceremony included Keena Hammond '95 of New York City, Elizabeth Banowski '95 of Fortson, Georgia, Marcia Fears '95 of Decatur, Georgia, Susan Wheelis '95 of Memphis, Tennessee, Susan Webb '95 of St. Simons Island, Georgia, Denise Lemos '96 of Miami, and Nancy Lamb '95 of Aiken, South Carolina, who caught the bouquet (see Marriages).

Diane Mize Prewett '95 of Culloden, Georgia, is giving away her home — practically, anyway. For an entry fee of $99 and a winning 250-word essay exhibiting a genuine desire to live or run a business in Culloden, the cottage beside her Victorian home can be yours. The Prewetts are moving to Americus following her husband's acceptance of a teaching job there. She's hoping for 650 entries and will announce a winner on December 1.

"Compellingly energetic" are the words recently chosen by the Macon Telegraph to describe the monotype prints of Chi Ezekwueche '96 of Macon. Her works were recently on display at Munford Frame and Art Supply in Macon.

Another artist from the class of '96 is getting some recognition for her work. Stephanie Miller '96 of Hartwell, Georgia, won first place in the clay category for "Umbrella Stand" in the Brenau University Collaborative Student Art Show. Stephanie is seeking a degree in occupational therapy from Brenau.

VISTA, the domestic partner of Peace Corps, is benefiting from the services of Tamara Adkins '96 and her husband, Masafumi Nakanishi, who live in Safety Harbor, Florida. They work for non-profit organizations in Southeast Georgia. Tamara is also studying to be a midwife.

Yehudi Ben-j Self-Medlin '96 of Charlottesville, Virginia, is studying at the University of Virginia. She presented a talk on one of her research projects at a conference in Ohio this summer. "This work should be submitted as a paper soon!"

Beth Hitt '97 of Savannah just finished her master's degree at Wesleyan with the thesis "The Relationship Between the Co-op Model of Cooperative Learning and Student Attitude Toward Mathematics."

Sarah Weeks Callender '98 has accepted a position with Boy Scouts of America in Murfreesboro, Tennessee, as a district executive, working in fund-raising and with volunteers. It seems she may be the first woman to hold that position.

Julie Houston '98 of Boynton Beach, Florida, is working websites for a living. She stays busy writing and doing voice-overs for her stories.

Dublin High School is sporting a new fast-pitch softball coach. Karri Medley '98 of Dublin, Georgia, a four-year athlete in basketball and softball at Wesleyan, began the new job this fall.

Former students and friends of Gulnar Kheirallah Bosch, Wesleyan art professor from 1946 through 1957, are saddened by her passing on October 9, 1998, in Tallahassee, Florida. Born in 1909 on the Oglala Sioux Reservation in South Dakota, where her father was the reservation doctor, she lived a long and varied life. As a child, Dr. Bosch acted in several D. W. Griffith silent films. She studied art at the University of Chicago and the University of Paris Institut d'Art et Archaeologie, and received her Ph.D. in the history of Islamic art and architecture from New York University. Traveling extensively in Europe and Asia throughout her life, Dr. Bosch was friend to Ezra Pound, Nehru, Caruso, Fritz Kreisler, Gloria Swanson, Johnny Weismuller, and Khalil Gibran.

*We remember: Emily Hearn Webb

President, Wesleyan College Alumnae Association 1961-64

Emily Hearn Webb '42 died on July 25, 1998. As the daughter of a Methodist minister, the Reverend Anthony Hearn, and the wife of another, the Reverend James Webb, Jr., Emily called parsonages all over South Georgia home. Everywhere she went, she promoted Wesleyan, frequently meeting with alumnae, recruiting students, or representing the college at inaugurations and college fairs.

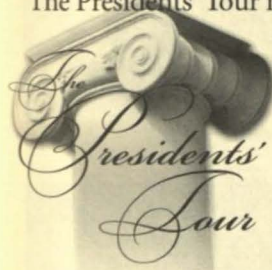

She was a member of the college Board of Trustees from 1971 to 1974. Her work as a Loyalty Fund Representative raised resources for the college on many occasions. As president of the Alumnae Association, Emily worked tirelessly for the improvement of faculty salaries.

The Alumnae Association presented Emily the Alumnae Award for Distinguished Service in 1974. Her daughter, Sharon, Wesleyan class of 1976, finished Wesleyan in three years, following in her mother's footsteps of academic achievement.

Alumnae Club News

Alumnae clubs and groups throughout the country have had the opportunity this year to meet with Wesleyan College president Nora Kizer Bell and Wesleyan College Alumnae Association president Mary Catherine Collins O'Kelley '72 and discuss plans for Wesleyan's Vision for 2002. The Presidents' Tour is sponsored by the office of alumnae affairs and is scheduled to include visits to eighteen cities within the current academic year.

Updating alumnae on the state of the college, exploring Wesleyan's potential for future growth, enlisting alumnae support in student recruitment, as well as recognizing alumnae for the important role they play in the college's future and of the need for their continued involvement in the alumnae association and in the life of the college, are signature themes of the tour, which took the two presidents to several cities in October.

Americus, Georgia

The historic Windsor Hotel in Americus was the venue for a fall luncheon on the 1998 Presidents' Tour. Alumnae hostesses Cornelia Shiver '25 and Harriett Wilson Peak '61 arranged for this special Wesleyan day in Americus for area alumnae and Presidents Bell and O'Kelley.

Other Club News

Atlanta

The Atlanta Club hosted a summer picnic for new students and their parents at the Fields Club in August. President Julie Castle '76 welcomed guests to this annual event, which also included transfer and current students. Meredith Henderson Tyree '88 coordinated plans for the picnic.

Columbus

In August, Columbus area young alumnae, headed by Ruth Powell '93, hosted a

"Fiesta" at Rio Bravo for new and current students from the surrounding area. Since new students had yet to learn the words to the alma mater, they did the next best thing and karaoke-d the night away.

Lanier Club (Gainesville / Athens, Georgia area)

Alumnae from Athens and Gainesville met to organize and finalize plans for initiating Wesleyan's newest alumnae club. Group co-leaders Sybil Hall '95 and Lisa Lewallen Nelson '95 hosted a "Coffee and Planning Session" held at Sybil's home in October.

Macon

Alumna hostess Aimée Morris Lashley '96 and other young alumnae from the Macon area welcomed new students, including Encore and transfer students, to a pizza party at Z's Pizza in Macon. Current students from the Middle Georgia area also attended. Earlier in August, Macon alumnae were invited to a Wesleyan Night, part of Thursdays at Sunset, a music festival sponsored by Wesleyan, Mercer University, and Macon State College, in downtown Macon.

Savannah

A Sunday Social honoring new students was held at 3*2*1 Cafe in Savannah. Savannah Club President and hostess Lizann Youmans Provan '81 welcomed alumnae, students and parents to an afternoon of Wesleyan conversation, food and fun. Other guests from the college included Don Williams, assistant director of admissions, and Cathy Snow. Anne Scarborough Hughes '78, president-elect of the alumnae association, and Kathy A. Bradley '78, alumna trustee, also attended. W

Wesleyan alumnae license tags: the proud, but the few

Wesleyan alumnae in the state of Georgia campaigned earlier this year to reach the "critical mass" required for the state to commission a special Wesleyan vehicle license plate. Thanks to each one of you who responded — and thanks to Melanie Filson Lewis '93 for heading up the valiant effort. However, we didn't quite make the requirement this time around. Maybe next time, Wesleyannes!

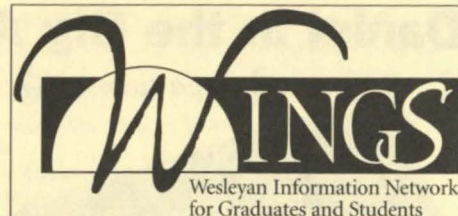

Now's the Time to Nominate for Alumnae Awards

The Wesleyan Alumnae Association recognizes outstanding alumnae through the Alumnae Awards Program. Awards given include Distinguished Achievement in a Profession and Distinguished Service to the Community, to the Church, or to Wesleyan College. In 1990, the Association added the Young Alumnae Award to recognize outstanding achievement within the first ten years after college. The Association also honors individuals who make exceptional contributions to the college and its alumnae through the Valeria McCullough Murphey Award, established in 1989. Awards are announced during Alumnae Weekend. It's time now to make nominations for the 1999 awards. Nomination forms are available from the Alumnae Office; the deadline for nominations is January 10, 1999.

BIRTHDAY TRIBUTES

The Alumnae Board of Managers have found the perfect way to say Happy Birthday. Each participated in the Birthday Tribute Club by sending in gifts to recognize each other on their special day. Last year, with these gifts alone, they contributed more than $3,000 to the Annual Loyalty Fund.

The Board of Managers invites all alumnae to make even more meaningful gifts by contributing to the Loyalty Fund with a tribute to Wesleyannes throughout the year on their birthdays.

Your chance to help Wesleyan students "launch" their futures

Be on the lookout for information on this exciting new program through Wesleyan College's Career & Internship Services. Alumnae can help students by speaking to students one-on-one, allowing them to "shadow" you on your job, hiring a Wesleyan student as an intern, or assisting with on-campus workshops and discussions.

You'll be receiving a questionnaire in the mail that will allow Career & Internship Services to build a database of alumnae contacts.

If you have questions or would like further information, contact Barbara Rowan at (912) 757-5218.

Daniel in the Big Apple

Alumna turns tragedy into musical inspiration

Although she had been active in music teaching, performance, and church music leadership ever since graduating from Wesleyan in 1984, Amanda Jacobs Dean “never stopped to consider musical theater.”

But when she was home visiting family and friends in Macon in 1997, that all changed overnight.

Literally.

From the evening she heard the real-life story of one family’s grief, to the New York City stage, the evolution of Dean’s musical, Daniel, has been “like a gift from God” (see sidebar).

Set in the America of the Roaring Twenties, the show deals with the way one man faces the lions of his own emotions but perseveres. Though it’s a long way from the days of the prophets to the days of the flappers, the lessons of faith, hope, and love are timeless. “The speakeasy, like the lion’s den, is a parallel to our own minds — a place of danger where we seldom go,” says Dean. But the setting draws audiences easily into its music, costumes, and dance as well as its message. As Dean puts it, “There’s just enough fantasy — but just enough reality.”

After Dean drafted the lyrics and music, the work received its first reading, at her church in Batavia, New York, in August 1997. From there, a friend suggested that Daniel would flourish in community theatre. Dean received a State of New York Arts Council grant to fund the show’s workshop premiere in April 1998. The performance sold out and went on to runs at the annual Oatkafest in Leroy, New York, the Kenan Center in Lockport (suburban Buffalo), and the Labor Daze Festival in Oakfield.

On December 7, it hit the Big Apple: a staged reading in the Educational Alliance’s “First Look” series at the 14th Street Y — a venue known as a launching ground for works of drama and poetry. The show “is a shining example of taking standard musical theater to the next level,” says classmate Patricia Sterling ’84, who along with Lou Beller ’64 attended the New York City reading.

All along its journey, Daniel has developed through unexpected channels. Like the chance encounter on an airplane flight out of Detroit, when Dean’s seatmate, a Presbyterian elder, helped her think through one of the story’s most difficult theological questions. The Manhattan hospitality for cast and crew, graciously arranged by an Episcopal bishop. The emotional meeting with the Georgia family whose son survived the tragedy. “It’s not really my show,” says Dean. “It’s a show with a mission. Every one of us is like Daniel, either letting our emotions rip us apart, or choosing faith, hope, and love.”

Back at home in upstate New York now, after a whirlwind year-and-a-half with the show, Dean looks forward to spending the Christmas season with her husband, Ken, and their daughter Elibba, born August 21 (conveniently between shows). Where Daniel will travel next, Dean isn’t sure — but she’s relying on faith.

“I just know it will be very, very clear.” ■ — Barbara A. Brannon

From the creator of DANIEL

DANIEL EXISTS BECAUSE A NINE-YEAR-OLD BOY FROM MACON, GEORGIA, DIED IN A TRAGIC ACCIDENT WHILE HIS FRIEND SURVIVED IT. The two boys were playing in tunnels which had been augered throughout stacks of cottonseed husks. When the boys failed to return home for supper, the mother of the boy who lived went to look for them and was horrified to discover that one of the tunnels had collapsed on them. The anguish and suffering that the families involved have felt from such a senseless death touches everyone who knows the story.

About two years after the boy’s death, I was having dinner with his grandparents. The grandfather, a close family friend for many years, turned to me at one point in the conversation and asked me to help his family. His request affected me deeply. That night, I went home and prayed, asking God to show me what He wanted me to do, and promising Him that I would do it.

When I woke up the next morning, I felt the families around me, and intense emotional pain. I cried. I could almost see them in a hole that was getting deeper, and I could see their emotions eating them alive, like lions ripping flesh from their prey. It was in that moment I thought of the Bible story about Daniel and the lions. I knew that Daniel had survived the lions, but my question became, “What were the ‘emotional’ lions that Daniel faced in the pit?” and “Why was Daniel made to suffer?”

Out of these questions, DANIEL was born. Within two months, all of the music was written and submitted to the Copyright Office; within six months of the idea’s inception, there was a working script and we had our first reading.

At the first reading, it was evident that DANIEL wields a powerful message, a message for everyone. We, like Daniel, face emotions every day. These emotions are like lions, and it is up to us to decide whether we will tame the lions or let them eat us alive. And, if we choose faith, hope, and love, we can survive anything.

Dear Wesleyannes,

It is with great joy and sadness that I complete my term as Loyalty Fund Chair. We set records this year and I am proud that I, like you, played a part in making that happen. Never before have Wesleyan's alumnae participated in the Annual Loyalty Fund as they did this year. The theme "Growing Together" was perfect. We grew in our percentage of alumnae participation in the Loyalty Fund just as Wesleyan has grown toward Dr. Bell's vision for the college. Things are looking great for Wesleyan. And think about it, right when Wesleyan is perfecting its new look next year, our alumnae will be breaking new records!

Then there is the sad part. Being involved in the Loyalty Fund provided me the honor of visiting the campus a few times a year and the opportunity to work with some wonderful Wesleyan volunteers and staff. It was always uplifting to be back on the campus. I will miss that special feeling and those wonderful times.

Thank you for allowing me this special moment in time again with Wesleyan. But most of all, thank you for Growing with Wesleyan!

With gratitude,

Sally Moffett McKenna '75
Loyalty Fund Chair, 1997-98

Congratulations Alums,

You have helped make this past year's campaign the most successful in history. Our percentage of alumnae giving surpassed our goal. We all have different reasons for giving, but I believe the most frequent reason lies in our desire to give back to an institution that has given so much to us. I know that individually our gifts might appear modest but collectively we make a difference. Thanks to all of you who make a difference year after year in directing the future of Wesleyan. We are grateful for your generosity.

Kindest regards,

Virginia Ann Daniel Holman '75
Loyalty Fund Vice-Chair, 1997-98

Giving Lists by Class Year

"Love Times Five"

Wesleyan Annual Fund leadership sought a way to honor alumnae who support Wesleyan year in and year out. In 1994, we devised a program known as "Love x 5" to recognize all alumnae who have made a gift to Wesleyan for at least the past five consecutive years.

The hearts ♥ by the names of class donors signify gifts to the Alumnae Loyalty Fund for the last five or more years.

Forgotten treasure rediscovered in the Olive Swann Porter Building

By Rosalyn Dunn, The Macon Telegraph

When workers at Wesleyan were preparing to repaint the old chaplain's office last month, they stripped some old wallpaper. No one could believe what was underneath — an 8-by-15-foot handpainted jewel of a biblical mural.

"No one had a clue it was there," said director of campus and community events Frances Van Horn. "We think it's just great."

The mural is painted in five symmetrical panels, with one phrase from the The Lord's Prayer in each panel. In the center panel, for example, there is a man hunting rabbits for "give us this day our daily bread," and in the fourth panel, a horned, pointy-tailed devil represents the plea to "lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil."

"Since it's a prayer, I painted it above the mountains because (prayer) is above everything," said artist Elizabeth Piper Littell, who was quite a discovery in herself.

College staff members researched the painting's signature and identified Littell, a member of the class of 1962, as the mural's creator.

"It was my senior art project," Littell said. "I wanted to do a religious mural. I had to submit three designs."

"The Lord's Prayer" was first painted to scale on a 2-by-5-foot canvas and was submitted to a committee and the college president. It was chosen over her other entries, "Adam and Eve in the Garden" and "The Prodigal Son."

Then Littell began work on the mural, a dry fresco, which took several months to complete. She used flat enamel paint, which had to exactly match the tones on the smaller painting.

"I did it in a primitive medieval style. It needs to be flat to be read," she said, referring to a technique she'd seen on murals in Mexico City where the simple paintings told stories to the illiterate. Her preferred style at college before marrying at age 19 (studying at Corcoran, in London and at American University). She was 52 when she got her bachelor of fine arts degree from Wesleyan.

"I had a good time," she said. "The young girls were all so nice."

Today, Littell, 88, lives in a retirement home in Florida and still actively paints. In fact, her next show, featuring paper assemblages and topical montage, is scheduled for March 1999 at the University Club in Winter Park.

Over the years, her work also has been shown at Baltimore Museum, the Corcoran Gallery, the Smithsonian, and American University. A solo show at Mercer University in the 1960s was well reviewed.

Littell was just as thrilled by the mural discovery as the college. She had long wondered if it still existed.

During annual alumnae luncheons in Winter Park, Fla., she asked some of her fellow attendees if the painting was still there — she has not been on Wesleyan's campus since graduation — and they'd told her no. It's not clear when the mural was covered; Van Horn said it had been the time was a semi-realistic style, similar to impressionism but with much larger blobs of color. Those works were accepted three times for show at the High Museum of Art in Atlanta, she said. But the simpler approach seemed more appropriate for the mural.

"When you're going to paint God, you've got to be careful," she said with a laugh. Littell's bold style reflected her life experiences. She was one of Wesleyan's early "nontraditional" students, beginning classes after her late husband, U.S. Marine Corps Brig. Gen. Earl Piper, got a job assignment in Macon in the 1950s. They'd lived around the world and she'd finished only two years of papered over before she started working at the college in 1970.

The mural's soft colors have been remarkably well preserved over the past 36 years. At one time, they matched soft lilac carpeting, white drapery and the white furniture, made by Chaplain Samuel L. Akers, in the room. It was a meditation room, Littell said, but had evolved into more of a meeting place.

Today, that room is being used as an office for admissions counselors — though college administrators are discussing ways to preserve this fascinating piece of Wesleyan's past. W
